	General		The Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow although based in Glasgow represents Fellows and Members throughout the United Kingdom. While NICE has a remit for England, many of the recommendations are applicable to all devolved nations including Scotland. They should be considered by the relevant Ministers of the devolved governments. Similarly, this is a common issue throughout the NHS in the UK. Consideration of evidence appears to linked solely to the NHS in England and reference to the Royal College of Physicians of London.
1	Do you agree with the proposal not to update the guideline?		Generally, yes. However, the College is concerned that there are still issues in this important area where deteriorating patients are not detected early enough or patients are simply not monitored. The committee has looked only published evidence rather than where care has not been optimal. Datix reports especially “Never events” have not been reviewed. HM Coroner’s inquest data have not been reviewed. Great emphasis is placed on the EWS whereas what is important is that it heralds clinical review. EWS can miss deteriorating patients. This is not discussed. An example would be a neuro-musculo-junction problem where patients vital signs are preserved and the patient does not appear breathless eg
