

2008 Killermont

Roger Smith, the Edinburgh captain, forgot to bring the Cup and had to return home. Surely he had not felt it necessary to bring the Cup, assuming it would be returning anyway! Drinks were followed by lunch. In the absence of Sir Roddy, due to injury, Douglas Briggs captained the Glasgow team. David Mason spoke briefly about his research into the Drs Fergus and their connections to the Glasgow College. With Edinburgh having an early lead by three games to two, there was some anxiety. The Glasgow team rallied to win the last three games and regained the Cup for the Glasgow College, at least until 2009.

Glasgow won by 6 games to 2
